REGISTRATION BEGINS
AT THE TECH TODAY

Attendance Will Exceed That of Any Previous Year of Institution.

Promptly on the steps of the Georgia School of Technology will formally open to the registration of students for the scholastic year of 1913-14. For the past two days many students have registered their attendance in advance, but the regular time is set for today.

A faculty assembly increased in strength is announced for this term, and the greatest year in the history of the school, from an educational standpoint, is freely predicted by all familiar with the existing conditions. Today will formally open the twenty-sixth year of the school and from present indications it promises to be the most successful year of the institution.

No accurate figures could be obtained Tuesday on just what number of pupils the student body would contain, but it is said on good authority that the number will far exceed the record of any previous year. The departments of the school are already crowded to their utmost capacity, and many of the rooms having been reserved by students of last year who will return this term, and a number of them having been secured by new students.

Dr. R. G. Matheson, president of the school, in speaking of today's opening, Tuesday evening said: "The indications of the Georgia School of Technology will show this year the most successful term in its history. Most competent faculty has been secured for the term, and the number of students thus far registered represent the finest type of American manhood. Up to this a number of students indicate the largest classes in the school's career have registered, and I confidently expect to see all attendance and class records broken."

Registration Begins at Shorter College.

Rome, Ga., September 16.—(Special.)—New students at Shorter college spent today taking the entrance examinations. Old students will register tomorrow, and the formal opening exercises will take place Thursday. A new feature this year is a department of business and economics in charge of Dr. Carolyn Geisel.

Mass Meeting at Swainsboro
Condemns Action of Prison
Commission Recommending
Clemency for McNaughton.

Swainsboro, Ga., September 16.—(Special.)—A petition issued as a result of a mass meeting of Emanuel county citizens at Swainsboro, called for the purpose of publicly condemning the action of the prison commission in recommending a full pardon for Dr. W. J. McNaughton, who was convicted here in 1910 of the murder of Fred Pland, and who has been three times sentenced to death, was sent to Governor Slaton today.

The men who attended the meeting were greatly incensed at the action, saying they were entirely unable to understand why the courts of the land should be overruled, the sentence of judges set aside and the verdict of unbiased juries disregarded.

The petition is signed by a committee composed of J. P. Price, R. C. Brannan, S. S. Moore, W. F. Thompson and R. L. Colon, and asks and respectfully demands that the governor show no clemency for the condemned physician. "We are convinced, beyond doubt," they say, "that if this recommendation is heeded by his excellency, it will directly foster and instigate lawless men who will feel no protection under the law, and it will ultimately lead to anarchy, which we know is a blot on civilization, and will impoverish us of justice and the freedom which our fathers fought to establish."

The mass meeting was hurriedly called, and in its impromptu fashion stated its position on the question at hand.

Governor Slaton, late Tuesday night, declared he had received a message from J. P. Price of Swainsboro, asking him to delay action in the McNaughton pardon matter until "both sides could be heard from."

The governor declared that he did not know until Tuesday what the purpose of the message was, but that he had then heard that some Swainsboro citizens were protesting against granting a pardon to Dr. McNaughton.

"I wrote Mr. Price today," said the governor, "and told him that I had seen his arguments in the McNaughton matter, as I have gone over the papers in the case and notified him to be present at the argument today."

PRESIDENT GORDON POINTS OUT DANGERS

And Says Clark Amendment on
Cotton Futures Will Hurt
Farmers and Mill Men.

Columbus, Ga., September 16.—(Special.)—R. B. Gordon, president of the Cotton Manufacturers' association of Georgia, and one of the leading cotton mill men of the state, has written a letter to Georgia's senators and representatives concerning the proposed tax of 50 cents per bale on dealings in cotton futures.

In his letter, President Gordon refers to a telegram sent Senator Simmons, chairman of the senate finance committee, in July, protesting against the Clark amendment and in which he said: "If legislation must be had to stop gambling in cotton, let us accept the Clark amendment for the purpose only. There should be an exemption made in order to protect the farmers and manufacturers who use the cotton exchanges in order to keep from gambling."

President Gordon's letter, in his letter to the Georgia senators and representatives, says:

"Within the last two weeks there has been a change in the most sudden advance in the price of both cotton and cloth that has been seen since the 'Nifty' year."

"As a business man as well as a legislator, I ask you to note the following: I have no objection to the tax on the corporation of which I am the executive head, as my only object in doing so is to impress upon you the practical application of the proposition stated in my letter to Senator Simmons."

"During the last two days the Columbus Manufacturing company has been offered and has accepted orders for cloth aggregating $100,000, with shipments running up to July, 1913. This is nothing extraordinary, and is in the course of business, and other mills are doing the same in larger or lesser degrees."

"The point, however, is this: Would we have dared to accept these future orders for cloth if we could not have had with us the sure sale of other spot or future deliveries of cotton, and would we not have included in risk gambling if we had done so?"

How is Farmer Helped?
"With the facilities offered, however, by the cotton exchanges of the country, we could, and did, hedge these sales by buying October, December and January contracts," so called, as spot cotton at this time of the year was not available. Now, in what way has this transaction helped the man who raises the cotton?"

"First—We have committed ourselves to buy 5,000 bales of spot cotton as soon as available, as we cannot ship futures and will thus be sure to be in the market and hedge our position. The demand to that extent and thus to the extent of the transaction keep up the price of spot cotton."

"Second—Being protected by this hedge and with the usual parity between spot and futures maintaining an advance in price, we will be less a matter of concern to us, and we would naturally sell our cotton up than to see it go down because the high market would then be established. On the other hand, if the cotton exchanges are taxed out of existence, the whole machinery of modern mill cotton buying will be broken out of gear."

"The man who will be benefited will be the very large speculator and the big spot cotton operators, who will sit back and complacently watch spot cotton accumulate at sundry 'controlling points' in the south, and when the lead gets the big for the local bales, they will step in and buy at their own price, and the grower of the cotton will be the sufferer."

"No official grower or member of the Georgia Cotton Manufacturers' association desires to put his judgment up against the committee of wise men, senators or representatives in congress, but we do ask you to go along on the Clark amendment."

Early Losses Were More Than Recovered and Market Closed Net Five Points Lower to One Point Higher.

New York, September 16.—The cotton market was not more than moderately active today and fluctuations were irregular enough to suggest rather a nervous and unsettled sentiment. A feeling was expressed around the ring that weather above 13 cents brought out freer offerings from the south and caused a withdrawal of trade-buying orders. On the other hand, there were many predictions of an increasing demand from shippers on the decline, while further bullish crops reports were received from the territory affected by recent southern storms, and the weekly report of the weather bureau was considered more bullish than otherwise. Early losses were more than recovered as a result of these conditions, but prices weakened again, under reading or scattered selling, with the close at 12 1/2 points lower to 1 point higher.

The news from Washington left the trade uncertain as to the probable fate of the cotton futures provisions of the tariff bill, but it was generally encouraged a hope that the present bill would be considerably modified if it was not entirely eliminated, and this may have contributed to the midday advance. Cable news from Liverpool, although private advice from Liverpool reported increased order selling and a slack spot market, was a result of a railroad strike.

The local market was active at an advance of 2 points to a decline of 5 points and sold 1 to 5 points net lower on the early market, but a reaction and scattering pressure, but the market soon rallied from the early decline to 11 points net higher after the publication of the weekly weather report. December and the close was 10 or 12 points off from the best, while reports of a strike of linemen at Galveston, which had tied up the shipping at that point, and it was rumored that after the afternoon that considerable stocks in New York were being offered for delivery on October contract in cotton, spot, steady, middling upland, 12 1/2, gird, 13 1/2, said, none.
